What have you loved about 2014?

This year, I have loved traveling the world. I've been able to visit some fantastic destinations, both familiar and new! Some of the highlights include: the Canary Islands, London, San Francisco, New York and Hawaii.

What have you learned from 2014?

2014 has taught me that patience and perseverance does pay off!

What are you looking forward to in 2015? I'm looking forward to continuing to grow my blog, creating better and more exciting content, and bigger and better projects. I'm also looking forward to some updates we're working on at KENTON, but I can't say more than that right now.

What have you loved about 2014?

Flats, flats, and more flats! There have been so many sophisticated and subversive options that my feet have been grateful for the added comfort, alongside the great styles.

What have you learned from 2014? I've learned to be more confident in myself and trusting of my instincts. Even though I'm 5.1", I don't need to wear towering heels to assert my authority.

What have you loved about 2014?

It's been a great year of adventure. I've had the privilege to visit some Scotch distilleries in Scotland, deep sea fish in the Bermuda Triangle, taste grapes off the vine in the Cognac region of France, and catch up with friends and family in Asia.

What have you learned from 2014? To be grateful for every friendship, every opportunity, every morning I have the privilege to wake up...It's all a blessing.

What are you looking forward to in 2015? Taking more time to be still, to reflect, and to let the creative juices flow from there.

What are you looking forward to in 2015? I'm always excited for the runway looks to finally hit the shelves, and would like to see how the "stud trend" moves its way into a new year, as well as black and white, and fabulous pastel pieces.
